

Local Banks And Wasatch County Citizens Donate Three Computers To Middle School

2-26-87

Wasatch Middle School has received three new computers as the result of individual and collective efforts by local citizens and three of Heber's banks.

Valley Bank, Zions Bank and First Security have all contributed to the purchase of a computer, and through the efforts of Valerie Kelson, a member of the state school board, a second computer was obtained. A third computer was donated to the school through a promotional effort that gave Wasatch County residents an opportunity to contribute to the school's computer lab.

Dave Giles, principal of Wasatch Middle School, said that he hopes to acquire an additional 17 computers for a second computer lab.

Next year the middle school will have 60 more students enrolled and to meet this demand it is imperative that the school expand its computer resources, according to Principal Giles. A second lab will give the students more time to develop proficiency with the computers.

Presently, Wasatch Middle School is doing "more than the state requires," in computer education, said Principal Giles; but, "We need to make our kids competitive. We need to do the very best job we can to make our kids competitive after they're out of school," he said.

In the past Wasatch High School has taught key boarding and computer basics, and the goal of the middle school is to teach the students computer basics or general computer literacy. This way students can focus on more advanced computer studies in high school.

The computer lab has been a big success among students. "These kids just love the computers," said Principal Giles. "I see them in the lab before school, during lunch and after school — on their own time the kids are using the computers. That tells you how popular they are becoming," he said.

Razor blade shaving can be uncomfortable for a man with dry, sensitive skin, because it strips off more surface oil. Electric shaver may be preferable.

offense in order to obtain evidence of the commission for the prosecution by methods creating a substantial risk that the offense would be committed by one not otherwise ready to commit it."

He argued that by using an agent who was "just shy of 21," sending him into the store during a busy time, and by having him lie, or his having "lied on his own volition," the Heber City Police Department "apparently did everything it could to get this sale." Mr. Morrison further stated that, "There is something repugnant about the police or an agent of the police using litigation the case would create, "I couldn't justify the time and expense of the trial," said Mr. Smedley.

Mr. Smedley also stated that the Southland Corporation gave assurances that they would take steps to "safeguard and prevent" the sale of alcohol to minors. "The position of the city is that the right to sell alcohol is a privilege. Merchants (who sell alcohol) assume a responsibility to protect the youth. If you ask for the privilege of selling alcohol, you need to assume the responsibility that the person you're selling alcohol to is 21," said Mr. Smedley.
